WHO WE ARE

For 31 years, INCLUDEnyc has worked on behalf of young people with disabilities and their families to have equal opportunity and access to schools, the workforce, and cultural life in New York City.

We give families with children and young people from birth to 26 with any disability the knowledge, confidence, and skills they need to make informed decisions, effectively access and navigate systems and services, and the ability to advocate for themselves and other young people.

WHAT WE DO

Our Help Line specialists provide in-depth, one-to-one help and referral information to parents in English and Spanish, with translations to 200 additional languages available.

We provide on-site help to parents through our many partnerships, in locations throughout the five boroughs, so that families can get assistance in their own community.

Our expert staff teach workshops at schools and neighborhood organizations citywide. The workshops cover a wide range of disability topics and are designed specifically to meet parents' most pressing needs.

WHY WE DO IT

- 350,000 young people in NYC have disabilities
- 1 in 3 live in poverty
- 59% do not graduate from high school
- 4 in 5 are unemployed
- 2X more likely to be a victim of a violent crime

HIGH SCHOOL LAUNCH

High School Launch is a self-advocacy program that is implemented in ten schools in the New York City Department of Education (NYC DOE). The goal of the program is to create higher levels of engagement by and participation from students at their Individualized Education Program (IEP) meetings, as well as build students' self-advocacy skills.

High School Launch consists of five workshops:

1. Breaking the stigma of disabilities and understanding various disabilities
2. Looking critically at students' IEPs
3. Examining learning styles and accommodations and modifications that students need
4. Setting academic, transitional, and personal goals
5. Conducting mock IEP meetings

PROJECT POSSIBILITY

Project Possibility is one-to-one intensive case management for young people with disabilities who are transitioning in and out of public systems.

Criteria:

- For students ages 16-26
- Must have an IEP (or a suspected disability)
- Must have an educational or vocational goal

Provides support for:

- Navigating college, independent living, adult systems, special education, and benefits

TRANSITION

The purpose of this guide is to provide information and guidance on transition for students with disabilities. It includes a timeline for transition planning, as well as supportive resources and services for you or your child during transition.

WHAT IS TRANSITION?

In the special education world, the term transition applies to students who are preparing to leave high school and enter a post-secondary system, with the goal of successful and meaningful functioning in adult life.

- Post-secondary Systems:
 - College
 - Job/vocational training
 - Housing/independent living
 - Access to health care and additional health services
- Depending on each individual, transition begins approximately at the age of 12. Students must be invited to attend their Individualized Education Program (IEP) meetings at the age of 15. Transition can continue into a young person's mid to late 20s.
- The earlier you, your young person, and the professionals working with the young person begin working on a transition plan, the smoother the transition.

Enrollment at Co-op Tech fills up quickly and admission is heavily based on students' prior attendance rates. For more information, visit www.co-optech.org.

Career and Technical Education (CTE) programs run within specific DOE high schools. Students participate in a series of work-based learning experiences that include career days, field trips, internships, and other career preparation activities.
